DETAILED ACTION

Specification

The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities:

The specification uses the words "recognised" on page 8, line 28. To conform to US literature it is suggested to change them to stabilize, centered, neighboring and maneuvering, respectively.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 12-16, 17 and 19 are rejected, as understood, under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Burkinshaw et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,007,537).

Burkinshaw et al. discloses a device that includes a first mounting part (20) defining a receiving channel (62) that has a longitudinal axis and the mounting part further defines at least one slot (22) therethrough at an angle oblique to the longitudinal axis of the receiving channel (82). The first mounting part defines two intersecting slots (22 and 24) in the region of the receiving channel each having an acute but different angles relative to the longitudinal axis of the receiving channel, where the second mounting part (12) receivable on the first mounting part (20) has at least one slot (64) arranged. The second mounting part also defines a receiving channel where the first and second mounting parts face each other when second mounting (12) part is received on first mounting part (12). Burkinshaw et al. also discloses that each first and second mounting parts include guide elements (18 and 60) positioning the parts relative to each other such that the slots and V-shaped receiving channels face each other and are arranged congruently. With regard the statement of intended use and other functional statements, they do not impose any structural limitations on the claims distinguishable over Masini which is capable of being used as claimed if one so desires to do so. In re Casey, 152 USPQ 235 (CCPA 1967) and In re Otto, 136 USPQ 458, 459 (CCPA 1963). Furthermore, the law of anticipation does not require that the reference "teach" what the subject patent teaches, but rather it is only necessary that the claims under attack "read on" something in the reference. Kalman v. Kimberly Clark Corp., 218 USPQ 781 (CCPA 1983). Furthermore, the manner in which a device is intended to be employed does not differentiate the claimed apparatus from prior art apparatus satisfying the claimed structural limitations. Ex parte Masham, 2 USPQ2d 1647 (1987).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 18 is rejected, as understood, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Burkinshaw et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,007,537) in view of Hangody et al. (U.S. Publication No. 2002/0143342).

LeHuec et al discloses the claimed invention except for V-shaped channel that are roughened. Handgody et al. teaches having a rough surface to resist movement of the device (Paragraph 96, lines 12-14). It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to construct cutting device of LeHuec et al. with roughened receiving channel in view of Hangody et al., in order to prevent movement or slippage of the device.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 20-24 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. See PTO-892 for art cited of interest.
